

Partnering with Scientists

Our consultants can work with you to select research questions and design experimental studies more likely to be attractive to high-profile journals and your peers. We can help you perform rigorous analyses, with or without statistics. More importantly we can help you make sense of your results and position them in the "bigger picture".

Many clients ask us for help when it's too late—they have already finished the project and just want to publish it—but they are disappointed when journals repeatedly reject their work because of problems or inadequacies that were decided early in the project. We can help you avoid those mistakes.

Our experienced consultants, who are former researchers from the US and Europe with extensive experience in publishing, can work with you along part or all of your journey from IDEA to PRODUCT. We can advise you on how to

- frame your research question(s)
- design your experiments
- analyze your data
- prepare the overall story

such that high-level international journals and peers are likely to consider your work attractive.

Contact us for a discussion and quotation at info@creaducate.hk